

Midgets Win First Game Of 3rd Round From Collingwood 7-4

By GEORGE HASKETT, JR.

It's getting to be quite a habit. In the final frame, the Legionnaires found themselves out-shot and out-scored 2-1. Morrill sank the first at 120 to whittle down the Legion lead. Bill Firth, restored the margin in the fifth minute of play, as he skated the length of the ice on a solo excursion and fired a low shot into the Collingwood cage. Half a minute later the Shipbuilders were again on the score sheet. Bob Walmsley going in alone to score on Andrews to close the scoring at 7-4.

Firth's second line, Jack Crouche, Doug Bunn and Bob Rose, back-checked well, as did Ron Coveney and "Pepper" Martin when they put in brief appearances. George "Nick" Zogolo helped with the blue-line traffic. The first line, turned in most of the scoring points, and performed in such a manner as to give the enemy rear-guards a decided headache. Bill Firth and "Red" Wilkins got in some steady checking at the blue-line. Firth finding time to move up for a goal and an assist. While he wasn't the busiest man by any means, Andrews between the pipes made some nice saves.

For the visiting sextet, Len Cook, "Tubby" Barrett, Frankie Dance and Bob Walmsley showed to best advantage. The black and white were a husky crew and showed plenty of zip and speed on the attack. Coach Ab Kirby's charges, while down three goals at this stage may prove quite a chunk for the locals to chew before the series is over.

Guidance An Inescapable Responsibility -- Beattie

Highlighting the program for education night at the meeting of the Newmarket Lions club on Monday was an address on vocational guidance by H. R. Beattie, director of guidance for the Ontario department of education.

Mr. Beattie outlined the philosophy of the work that is being done in Ontario and said that people who are accustomed to the idea of prescription as applied to vision, nutrition and other physiological processes sometimes assume that the principles of guidance are similar to those in medicine, industrial chemistry and other applied sciences. "This misunderstanding tends to make people skeptical of guidance work," he said. "Guidance, as practised by those who understand its true purpose, offers no magical formula. It is a slow, often difficult process of helping a student to help himself. It is a concerted effort on the part of all school personnel, assisted by the efforts of trained counsellors, to get young people to realize that decisions based on facts are more likely to bring success and happiness than decisions based on mere whims and hearsay."

He said that every school child was constantly faced with the necessity of making decisions and adjustments, but that if these were to be effective, he needs help and understanding in selecting the school course best suited to his requirements and in choosing training for and entering an occupation in which he can derive the greatest benefit from those talents which he possesses and in which he will find his weaknesses the least handicap. "Self guidance is the ultimate aim of vocational guidance," he said. "Guidance is far removed from the field."

Too Much Specialization

He said that conditions in the modern schools had tended to draw away from this principle. "Large classes and subject specialization make it impossible for teachers in most cases to know their pupils," he said. "Teachers are frequently forced to view their pupils in the light of achievement in one subject and then the only four or five lessons a week. Such a condition makes it impossible for a teacher to understand the abilities and capabilities of students."

Mr. Beattie said that so much of the work that is done today is done behind the walls of factories and office buildings that young people have little chance of knowing what the workers actually do. In addition, most occupations demand specialized training, he said.

N.H.S. GIRLS' SQUAD TOPS HOOPLA TEST

On Saturday, Feb. 22, the girls of Uxbridge high school were hostesses to the senior basketball teams of Aurora, Newmarket and Whitby. The competition was exceptionally keen. In the first game Newmarket defeated Uxbridge 14-12. Pat Duncan was outstanding for Newmarket with 12 points to her credit. Joyce Pollock and Joyce Wilson scored twice each for Uxbridge.

In the second game Aurora won over Whitby 11-9. Florence Bell played well with six points. In the second round the losers played off, Whitby defeating Uxbridge 16-12. Then the winners played Newmarket, winning the game 12-4. Pat Duncan, Eileen Jackson and Arlene McTavish scored for the winners.

In the finals the Newmarket girls defeated Whitby by a score of 12-4. Arlene McTavish started with nine points.

On the winning team all the players turned in a fine game, each one contributing to the team success. Ruth Hill, Marion Rose and Beth King played well on the defence and were fully supported by Helen Egerton and Marilyn Spear. Pearl Gunn, Audrey Rowland and Fayline Winn played well on the forward line.

BREAKS HIP

Mrs. John Cain, Simcoe St. W. fell and broke her hip two weeks ago but is improving at her home.

The first machines at the Canadian Hoffman plant here began to operate on February 17. The machining of parts had begun, and several machines are now in operation.

The Hoffman press assembly department is being organized to start the assembly of garment presses immediately, and organization of the stockroom is under way. Production machinery and machine parts are being transported daily from the Toronto factory.

The electric power plant is not complete, but sufficient power to meet present requirements is available. All of the lighting fixtures have been installed in the factory and in the boiler building, but they have not as yet been installed in the office section on the second floor of the factory building. The power converter has not been hooked up yet, but 60-cycle power will be used for the fluorescent lighting and for testing equipment. The plumbing fixtures are in the process of installation.

At the present time, the masons are at work on the partitions on the ground floor, and the plasterers are busy on the ceilings and walls of the office. The partitions in the office will be of wood, and work will not begin on them until the walls and ceilings are complete. The flooring in the office has not been laid as yet either, as the material has not been available.

Heating is still of a temporary nature in the buildings; the small 30 h.p. boiler is at present being fired by coal to heat the factory, and four of the 16 heating units have just been installed temporarily until the main boilers are ready. There is a considerable amount of steam-fitting to be done yet before the units can be hooked to the main boilers.

Work on the rail siding has been halted until spring. The frost in the ground makes it hard enough to support the cars now, but a fresh stone foundation will be needed in the spring or the siding will settle under the weight.

The front entrance of the main building is under construction now and should be completed shortly.

The building should be completed by the middle of March, barring unforeseen circumstances. R. J. McGuire, general manager of the plant said, "We should be in full operation by the middle of April."

Tom Kirk Night Pictures Published Two Days After

The Era and Express set something of a record this week by having the pictures taken on Tuesday night at the Newmarket Arena where the annual Tom Kirk night pictures were taken on Thursday. Ordinarily, it takes close to a week to have the pictures prepared for publication.

The photos were taken by M. H. McMoran, 141 Main St. as each race was finished. When the sport was over, Mr. McMoran's workers until 3 a.m. developing and printing three of the pictures for publication. The pictures were then wrapped up left on the doorstep of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Dillane at that Mr. Dillane could pick them up and take them to Toronto early Wednesday morning. Through the co-operation of the electrotypes, the pictures were prepared for printing in time to be picked up by Arnold McMoran on his return from his weekly trip to Toronto. The editor expresses his appreciation for their help in enabling him to print the pictures of Tom Kirk night to appear after the event.

While only three of Mr. McMoran's pictures are published here, other pictures of Tom Kirk night are on exhibition at the arena.

St. John's school again walked off with top honors at the annual Tom Kirk night for grade school children at the Newmarket Memorial arena Tuesday night. Pupils of that school garnered the highest total of points in races and topped off the night with wins in both girls' and boys' races.

Tom Kirk night, named after a former sergeant in the county police who began the custom of sponsoring an annual "treat" for children at the arena, was held at an earlier date this year with the result that there was good ice for the events and skating afterwards. Since Sgt. Kirk's death in 1929, the annual event has been carried on by an informal committee of businessmen in co-operation with the staffs of the grade schools.

Starting the night's fun was the final game in the school's hockey schedule. The team captained by John DeLallaye defeated Kenneth Burke's team 4-3 in a hard-fought battle. The teams were matched as to age and size with members drawn from every school so that competition would be even.

On DeLallaye's team were Bob Bell, Ivan Bray, Tom Birrell, Stan Pollard, Bob Hutchinson, Melfort McCaffrey, Bob Stickland, Bph Burch, Ronald Brown, Robert Sanders, Don Langdon, Ross Newton, Aubrey Martin, Stanley Arthurs, Terry Carter, Don Jones, Bob Atwell and Jim Sine.

Burke mustered Murray McDonald, Bill McHale, Laverne Firth, Freeman West, Donald Barker, Norman Lightheart, Taylor Gilbert, Franklin Morton, Elgin Simonson, Glen Koffer, Donald Cook, Rodney West, Jack Shropshire, David Lyons, Harold Hutchinson, Ted Taylor and Don Williams. The teams were coached by Mickey Smith and Rev. T. J. McCabe respectively, and the game was refereed by supervising principal H. A. Jackson and Wm. Dobson.

DEBENTURES FOR MUNICIPAL COSTS

It is nearing the time when the budget will be brought down in the Newmarket town council, a budget of unusual interest since it must be made to cover considerable territory. The breaches Newmarket has been wearing these last ten or 15 years are a pretty tight fit and don't come right down to the ankle any more. Moreover, they are badly frayed and the seat is as shiny as a barber shop mirror. There is a new suit to purchase soon and a lot of tailoring to be done right now.

The big problem, as it is in every family, is how to pay for the new outfit. Taxation provides an income which can be expanded or contracted at will. At the same time, the town fathers can buy on credit the things that are necessary to keep Newmarket presentable. But like everything else, there are advantages and disadvantages to both.

There is a limit on taxation no matter how great the need. Too sharp a rise in the mill-rate works an unfair hardship on much of the community. Yet an increase seems necessary if Newmarket is to balance its budget. Debentures will provide revenue but they carry with them an extra burden of interest and must be paid over a number of years. There are those who believe that future generations should not be saddled with the debts of their fathers.

Possibly a compromise between a moderate increase in taxation and the issuance of debentures will provide the answer. Consider the provision of new sidewalks, for example. Most of the sidewalks in Newmarket need repair. New sidewalks must be laid at the military camp and on Park Ave. where Newmarket annexed part of Whitchurch. To raise the cost of this work by taxation, a heavy increase in the mill-rate would be necessary. To even do part of the work would mean some increase. Moreover, repairs have been so delayed that a further wait only increases the costs as the sidewalks crumble entirely. Why not issue a debenture and have the whole job done at once instead of limiting the roads and bridges committee to a budget in keeping with the year-to-year needs of the town?

It is unfortunate that too much emphasis is placed on debentures as a public debt and too little emphasis on the service that debt has enabled. The result has been that in their eagerness to retire debenture debts, successive finance committees have overlooked the advantages to be gained from being able to spend a large amount of money at one time for public services. Newmarket is expanding so rapidly that a delay in providing essential services will increase the price that must eventually be paid. By a combination tax increase and debentures now, at present low rates, money will be saved and needed municipal services provided.

BRITAIN'S PLIGHT IS DESPERATE

The British government handed down its long-expected White Paper on that country's economic condition last week. Its content was aptly summarized by the London Evening Standard which said that the government "offers the British people toil, tears and sweat. Blood alone they are spared in these piping days of peace."

It is difficult for Canadians to realize the desperate plight of England. The war brought Canada to maturity. It perfected its industrial techniques. It contributed towards a growing volume of international trade. It brought to the farmer better prices and surer markets. It created a thousand new industries to develop Canada's vast untouched resources. Economically speaking, the war was profitable to Canada.

But Canada is young and its horizon vast. Its resources are fitted to the developments of the new age of electronics and the atom. England is hoary in comparison and its resources severely drained. Coal is its staff of life but the centuries have taxed its stocks. The cost of its production now forces a hard bargain on international markets. Other nations are rivals in the world markets for manufactured goods where once England was alone. The supremacy that England enjoyed on world trade routes was lost during the war even while England stood firm against Hitler's aggression.

As if this accumulation of trouble was not enough, the weather has done what the Nazis could never do. Coming at a time when production began to offer some hope of economic salvation, a series of blizzards struck the country, knocking out transportation completely. Power was cut off when coal deliveries were prevented. The blanket of white spilling sport for Canadian skiers meant disaster for Britain. Roads can be cleared; food dropped to succor snow-bound towns; a warning sun melts the drifts. But nothing can make up the loss of production so necessary to national life unless it be a super-human effort by a people made weary by prolonged hardship.

There can be no doubt that the effort will be made. Whether the odds are too high is a question that only time can tell. But the effort will be made as only the British people can make it. War has stripped Britain but it has not destroyed the spirit of its people. Some insight into the pride and self-reliance of the British people is seen in the statement contained in the White Paper that no further loans will be sought from outside the country.

More revealing is Prime Minister Attlee's refusal of President Truman's offer to divert coal designated to other ports to Britain. Europe needs the coal more than England, Attlee said, and his words were echoed by men in the street. Such a breed does not easily succumb to disaster.

WHY NOT ANTICIPATE EVENTS?

During the discussion in the Newmarket town council over the proposal to purchase a former R.C.A.F. "crash tender" as a second fire engine for Newmarket, it was pointed out that even if purchased, "there was no place to put it." The charge, while true, shows a lamentable lack of planning for future in earlier years. Unfortunately, there appears to be no change in that policy.

The property committee of the council recently handed in its report which among other things, recommended the tearing down of the present firehall at the corner of Main and Millard Sts. and replacing it with a combined fire and police station for a second fire engine.

The report was read by the chairman of the property committee, Mrs. Caroline Edwards. There was discussion of a minor point, and then the report was filed. Will it now gather dust until next year when a new property committee will bring in a report for 1948 to follow the long line of its predecessors to the filing cabinet? Or will the town council, breaking with tradition, observe a complete consideration of its proposals with recommendations for appropriate action?

There is no question of the need of a second fire engine. Newmarket has out-of-town commitments, and with its increased size and industry, the risk of a second fire while the one engine is out of town is ever present. But out-of-town commitments or no, the size of Newmarket alone would warrant the second machine.

The argument that "there is no place to put it" is a poor substitute for action in providing a new engine. Certainly, a new firehall cannot be created overnight but the need for the second machine exists now and temporary shelter could be found until permanent quarters are provided. Members of the council are agreed, it seems, on the desirability of the second fire engine, but if the experience of the past is any indication, the purchase of the machine is likely to be delayed by that state of mind which asks "where would you put it?" instead of saying "we'll find accommodation for it somehow until something definite can be arranged."

The purchase of a new fire engine and the provision of a new firehall are linked together but let us not have one dependent upon the other. Let Newmarket town council show the initiative for a change instead of waiting until the pressure of events forces its hand. The property committee recommends a new firehall; the fire committee recommends a new truck. All the council need do now is to act.

MEMBERS PLAY HOOKEY FROM HOUSE

The Progressive Conservative party was soundly paddywhacked by the Globe and Mail not long ago, and it was all caused by a little matter of train schedules. There was a division in the federal house recently on a ruling of Speaker Gaspard Fauteux, which the Liberals won by a majority of ten.

What upset the Globe and Mail was that 29 Progressive Conservatives had left the house and were on the Toronto-bound train when the vote was taken. Had these gentlemen been less anxious in their desire to quit parliament hill on that particular Friday, the government would have lost the motion.

As it was, that majority of ten was only upheld by the fact that the Montreal train, on which several Quebec Liberals were planning to leave Ottawa, was later than the Toronto train, and quick action by the Liberal Whip when he saw that a vote was inevitable enabled the rounding up of the travellers from the station and nearby hotels and getting them to the house in time to vote.

According to later reports, Mr. Bracken warned the truants that if they didn't attend to their knitting, when the party came to power, there would be none of the patronage and appointments from among those whose record of attendance was poor. We had supposed that the members were there to serve their country but carrots of patronage and favored appointments Mr. Bracken is holding ahead of them disabuses us of this notion. However, even that is acceptable as long as it keeps the members at their desks where they should be.

The problems of absenteeism is not confined to the opposition ranks only. The prime minister is reported to have told his party that unless members were always on tap, they were likely to find themselves out of the house and canvassing the country in preparation for an election. The fact that the Liberals are in an excellent position for a general election doesn't alter the conviction in the minds of many of them that an election is a poor risk any time.

The concern of party leaders with absenteeism among the backbenchers emphasizes the slim majority the government has over the combined opposition parties, a majority 126 to 117. It further emphasizes the shocking lack of concern shown by many members in the country's business. We grant that it must be boring to listen day in and day out to the half audible remarks of the speakers but that is what members of parliament voted themselves an additional $2,000 for. If they don't think it is worth it, they can always resign.

In Passing

Tom Kirk night was more enjoyable than usual this year because of the better condition of the ice. Putting the date ahead is worth the inconvenience caused to league-playing teams when it is considered that it gives the school pupils a much welcomed treat and perpetuates the name of a man who remembered his own boyhood.

The cast of the Newmarket Dramatic club production, Bright and Glorious, is to be congratulated for its excellent showing at the Central Ontario drama festival Tuesday night at Hart House in Toronto. Competing against players in a class with professionals, the Newmarket actors came in for a good share of praise from the adjudicator. It shows what can be accomplished by Newmarket citizens once they set their hearts to the task. Let's have more such successes.

The Newmarket midgets continue to move ahead in their quest for the championship and the enthusiastic support of the town goes with them. Best of luck, kids.

THE COMMON SENSE HOME ECONOMICS AND HEALTH

These two important factors in our daily life form the framework of our homes and ourselves — our environment. Each has three important aspects and together we deal with home economics first, and divide it into the social, financial and spiritual economy of the home.

Of the three divisions, it seems to me the spiritual is the most important. Have you ever gotten up in the morning without a single thought or thanks given to the Creator of the Day? Maybe you get up in a hurry and race through your dressing and fly around getting breakfast with your mind on a hundred things you must do through the day, but you've forgotten to wind your spiritual clock; you have not quieted your heart and mind and soul with a few minutes' communion with One Who said that if we ask we receive, and who doesn't need help to meet the trials and irritations of the day?

If husbands and children see a fretted, worried-looking wife and mother at the breakfast table, it's almost a certainty that they will go out to their day reflecting just that, for we are all mirrors and reflect what we come in contact with.

So first thing in the morning let us set our spiritual economy in good order.

Social Economy

Then there's the social economy of the home, the atmosphere in which we live and move and have our being. The people in the home make it, absorb it, reflect it. If meal time is a happy time with good well cooked food, nicely served in pleasant surroundings, if all save up pleasant and funny things to tell, if we make it a time to discuss world news and events—things outside ourselves — we will rise up, refreshed and strengthened, but if we narrate our troubles and trials in all their gloomy details, we develop either bodily or mental indigestion—or both! I've seen homes where each meal time was a treat to mind and body; where even the children contributed their bit—birds they had seen or something they had learned.

Then too, there's the financial economy of the home and if what we read is correct, many a marriage goes on the rocks over money. There was a time—long past, thanks be — when women were supposed to know nothing of the management of money. Now it seems that the financing of the home is a family affair, to be discussed in open session. Most women have an allowance based on the buying they do, and it seems right that every child should have an allowance however tiny, and be responsible for buying some small item. And so learn that they have some responsibility; not develop the idea that father is just a money-making machine.

Large expenditures, if they are to add to the comfort and enjoyment of the whole family — should be discussed by all, with the full knowledge that each one may have to sacrifice a little for the good of all.

Health

Have you ever thought how much the health of the body depends on the mind and the spirit? If our spirits are attuned to God, the other two aspects fall into their proper places. We people in the country are blessed, indeed; before us is such beauty that it is a rest to mind and body. One poet has said, and I've quoted this before, that "more things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of," and I suppose our spiritual health depends on the trust we have that our heavenly Father will direct our lives if we ask Him.

It is a pitiful commentary on the mental health of our times that our mental hospitals are sadly overcrowded and with long waiting lists. The over-excitement, hurry and worry of our lives is in part responsible for this dreadful state of affairs. If we would only make ourselves take a short time every day to read a Psalm, or a lovely poem, or a bit of prose and let it take us away from all the hectic rush and tell us something of the green pastures and still waters.

Worry seems to be one of the worst enemies of health, and yet, how often we worry ourselves sick over something which never happens. They have not learned that "sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

The body is simply a reflector of mind and spirit. If you worry your digestion suffers; your head aches, your nerves are a quiver and you feel you haven't a friend in the world.

If you are fighting against the best that is in you, burying your talents, neglecting your home, taking no part in any movement for the bettering of the world, your conscience has twinges and that upsets mind and body. If we can cultivate a mind at peace with God and a heart full of love for our fellow men, bodily health will not be denied us, specially if we also fortify our bodies with healthful and appetizing food.

And so home economics and health act and react upon us, for good or ill, just as we choose to make them — for always the choice is ours.

Sportsman and scholar are the two words that best describe George Washington Robitaille, 86, for many years an enthusiastic curler, bowler, baseball pitcher and fisherman, and still an ardent hunter. George was born at Selkirk on July 4, 1860, and was called George Robitaille, but when at an early age, a drover from south of the border, who had taken a fancy to the youngster, offered him 25 cents to take on the added burden of the middle name, a deal was quickly made and the Washington added.

The drover was Seth Graves of Buffalo, who took advantage of the lack of tariffs at the time to carry on international trade, and each year he would take young Robitaille a little farther along the route with him before sending the youngster home. After a few years, young George was travelling all the way to Dunnville from his home in Selkirk, a distance of 18 miles. But the McKimble bill was passed, and the trips with the trader ceased.

Young George soon became a baseball enthusiast, and he became recognized as a pretty fair pitcher. At the age of 31 he quit the game for good, but the following year, when the Selkirk team was up against it for a pitcher they called on him for aid. He finally consented, and without any "spring training," the 40-year-old iron man went out to the mound and pitched two seven-inning games in the same afternoon—and won them both.

At one time he was a member of the team that lost out in the curling playdowns for the Governor-General's Cup by one point. T. H. Brunton was skip of that team, while W. H. Brunton was skip of the team that won the honors. He retains the Hon. E. J. Davis cup, presented to the Newmarket Curling Club in 1901, as the last winner of the cup. He won it in 1917.

In the fall of 1946, George went deer-hunting with the rest of the boys and expects to go again next year. He has a picture of a skeleton head that he once found, that had webbed antlers on one side and spiked antlers on the other.

"Before I was married in 1886, I used to go hunting every year, and I always got a deer, but after I was married I missed going for several years," he said. "I used to go to Chatham, but we went to Haliburton last year. I took Patsy here with me, but Paddy was just a couple of months old."

He also used to go out with the fishing boats on Lake Erie, to do pond net and gill net fishing. "When we were pond net fishing we used to lift about a ton of fish or more at a time," he says.

George farmed in Selkirk until he was 29, when he moved to Hagersville and opened a bicycle business with his brother-in-law. "That was when bicycles first became the rage, and we serviced and rented bicycles. I moved to Newmarket 42 years ago, and worked in the Specialty for three years before Walter Collins and I started a contracting business. We contracted for about five years. Ever since Ken Robinson came and opened the garage next door, I have worked there. There have been several different owners since then, but I have worked with them all." He also ran the local rink for 12 years after he came here.

Like Silas Armitage, one of George's favorite subjects for reminiscing is the old-time elections. He claims that he never took an active part in the electioneering, but according to his daughter, Nellie, "he always went out and did some quiet electioneering for Sir William." He was a strong grit himself, although all of the men that he curled with were Tories. "When William Lyon McKenzie was running, my wife's mother used to drive him around to make speeches," George admits.

Mr. Robitaille has always been a student of world affairs, and he possesses many newspapers containing the headlines of the great events of historical interest that have taken place in the past 100 years. He has a copy of the Buffalo Express, dated April 17, 1865, in which the assassination of Lincoln is described in detail; a copy of the Weekly Globe and Canada Farmer, dated September 23, 1881, telling of the assassination of President Garfield, and a copy of The Mills Murder and McConnell Trial and Execution, illustrated. The Saturday Blade, dated Chicago, September 8, 1894, tells of the Minnesota fire that took the lives of almost 1,000 people. The clippings fill a large heavy scrap-book, with enough left over to fill two or three more.

Mr. Robitaille's wife died a year ago last September, and his daughter now keeps house for him, but George goes to work at the garage every day "to help out."

LIBRARY CORNER

By CAROLINE E. ION

The Newmarket public library is supported almost entirely by a municipal grant of $1,400. There is also a small yearly legislature grant ($140.10 for 1945) which is based on the number of books, specially non-fiction, purchased by the library.

Membership fees for non-residents ($11.55 for 1945) and fines for delayed returns and for lost and damaged books ($52.58 for 1945), complete the list of receipts. These two later amounts generally cover the petty cash expenditures for the year. However, despite these meager resources a library of over 4,000 books is maintained.

The purchase of new books of all classes usually accounts for 50 percent of the expenditures with the usual items, such as rent, insurance, salaries, etc., covering the remainder.

For the past number of years a balance of approximately $400 has been carried forward.

Whenever the citizens of Newmarket show a genuine interest in their public library by swelling the ranks of its borrowers another $600 grant will probably be obtained from the municipality.

It is the responsibility of each member of the community to use and thus aid its library. Regardless of how much effort is exerted by the library board, how much money is obtained for its upkeep or how long and strenuously the librarian and her assistant work, the success of the library depends on its ability to fill a definite need in the community. This ability to provide, not only the majority of the current best-sellers, but also classics and reference material, is wasted

TO THE EDITOR

The editor: Having just witnessed the performance of Bright and Glorious, the Newmarket Dramatic Club entry in the Central Ontario dramatic festival at Hart House Tuesday night, I feel that a tribute should be paid to Mrs. Dorothy Bowman, director, J. G. Higginson, stage manager, their assistants and the cast who gave such an able presentation of this Canadian play.

Having gone in fear and trembling that our group would be hopelessly outclassed by all the illustrious dramatic groups surrounding the University of Toronto, I came away extremely proud of our own players — a feeling shared, I am sure, by the large group of supporters who journeyed to Toronto for the performance.

Newmarket is very fortunate in having a director of the ability and enthusiasm of Mrs. Bowman and a stage director with the experience of Mr. Higginson. They have spent so freely of their time this year to revive community interest in this cultural recreation that I take this opportunity to say "Thank you."

The Editor: Some days before the finance report was to come before York county council, I took it upon myself to ask all the members from the northern municipalities to meet me in one of the committee rooms after a session of council. I did this so I might put the position of the York County hospital before the members from the north. They all agreed to give support to further capital grants and to an increase in the maintenance grant for York County hospital at Newmarket.

Arthur Evans, reeve of Newmarket, and Joe Spillette, deputy-reeve of Newmarket, were 100 percent behind the movement to obtain larger grants.

I was very much disturbed to see that these two excellent representatives from Newmarket should be victims of rumors to the effect that they were not doing everything they could to help that splendid institution, York County hospital, at Newmarket.

Yours very truly,
J. D. Sibbald,
Reeve, Georgina twp.,
Jackson's Point.

Editor's note: The maintenance grant to the hospital was advanced from $2,000 to $5,000 with Reeve Evans and Deputy-Reeve Spillette voting in favor of the increase.

If you, you and you do not avail yourself of these services!

B. F.'S DAUGHTER

By John P. Marquand

This fifth novel based on the American way of life by one of the most popular novelists of our times, is probably John P. Marquand at his best.

"It is a story of the tangled lives of many people bewildered like all of us by the swift changes of the past 10 years." — Bernard Kiely.

The main characters, Burton Fulton, a self-made industrial giant; Polly, his young, but ambitious daughter; as well as the aristocratic Bob Tassim and the clever and influential Tom Brett; are realistically and forcefully brought together.

There is humor and charm, as well as an acute understanding of personal relationships in this story which is woven back and forth over a lifetime with none of the usual confusion.

The Late George Apley, John P. Marquand's first New England novel, won the Pulitzer Prize.

"I FIND SOYBEANS EASY-TO-GROW JUST CULTIVATED IN THE REGULAR WAY!"

No wonder this Middlesex County farmer was pleased with the $2,600.00 he got for his 40 acres of soybeans last year—when it took no extra farm equipment to grow them. Shortage of labour at harvest time was no problem either, as he got in his soybeans with a combine. Ontario farmers are sure of a ready market for soybeans, too. For Victory Mills needs over 3,000,000 bushels a year now—and the Canadian soybean crop must be increased many times to meet Canadian requirements.

15 SOUND REASONS FOR GROWING SOYBEANS!

1. Soybeans have a long planting period and are EASY TO GROW, using standard methods of cultivation and standard farm equipment.
2. A profitable CASH CROP. There's a ready market for all you can grow.
3. A real SOIL-BUILDER, improving soil, tilth and adding some nitrogen—soybeans fit into any "crop rotation" planning.
4. Soybeans are a HARDY crop—resistant to drought, light frosts, and heavy rains during growing season.
5. Growing soybeans is BENEFICIAL in its loosening effect on light, heavy-textured soils.

EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

In Canada, we think rightly that we have one of the best democracies, but few of us ever stop to think how the vital things of life are protected and made secure for us.

A thoughtful friend, who does as much good as anyone I know, said to me: "Don, do you realize what it means to you and to me, and to millions of other Canadians, that we can take it for granted that Life Insurance is safe? There are 4,000,000 Canadian owners of Life Insurance and the number is growing every day."

The sound reputation of the Life Insurance companies in Canada means that you can pick your plan, your kind of policies and your company, — no wonder millions of Canadians invest with complete confidence.

Life Insurance is a business built for everybody, a great enterprise which protects the future of more than ten million policyholders and their loved ones. Life Insurance offers a systematic and easy way to save. Consult an authorized agent about a plan best suited to your requirements.

The 200th telephone was installed in 1910 and in May, 1911, the Newmarket office was moved into larger and better quarters in the Star building and new equipment was provided. In the following year the 300th telephone was installed.

The first record of a telephone in Newmarket is contained in the note book of the Rev. Thomas Henderson, then general agent for the Bell Telephone in Canada. Dated October 18, 1879, the entry reveals that the Newmarket firm of S. A. Russell and Co. leased a pair of telephones for use on a private line.

These telephones resembled the receivers of the modern desk or wall set, were held alternately at mouth and ear for talking and listening and had two red bands painted round the handle to indicate that they were for use in Canada only.

The Bell Telephone Company of Canada was incorporated on April 29, 1880 and shortly afterwards began taking over the various conflicting telephone interests. In Newmarket, apparently, one of these was the private line of Danforth Roche, which ran from his residence here to his store in Aurora. According to Mr. Roche, this was the first telephone line in Newmarket.

An entry in the log book of C. F. Sise, then vice president and general manager of the Bell Telephone Company, reveals that in August, 1884, the Newmarket and Aurora line was working and exchanges being finished.

In the same year, a line was built to Toronto, linking Newmarket with many centres throughout the province. In 1884, a line was built to Barrie and in the following year, this was extended to Owen Sound. In 1890, one was erected to Richmond Hill.

Pocket-Size Directory

The small pocket-size telephone directory which sufficed to list the names and addresses of almost all subscribers in Ontario in January, 1885, contains the names of 18 subscribers in Newmarket. All except those of David Lloyd, the Bell Telephone agent, residing on Pearson St., and W. W. Playter, merchant, Prospect St., were in business offices.

The first switchboard was installed in Mr. Lloyd's insurance office at the corner of Main and Botsford Sts. Service was given from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. week days, 2 to 4 p.m. Sundays and 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m. holidays.

In 1886, the central office was moved to the book and news store of William N. Starr on Main St. who continued as Bell Telephone manager here until 1908, when J. M. McHardy took over.

The telephone directory for 1887, which lists 29 names in the Newmarket section, contains the following notice: "Owing to atmospheric disturbances, long distance talking is not always satisfactory, it being subject to considerable variation. At times, subscribers 700 miles away can be heard with astonishing clearness; at other times, owing to the above causes, difficulty is experienced and it is found impossible to hear distinctly."

Only One Wire Used
In those days, only one wire was used to connect a telephone with the exchange, the return circuit being completed through the ground where magnetic currents flowing through the earth's crust may cause disturbances. During 1901, all Newmarket telephones were equipped with metallic circuits which required a return wire instead of the ground, thus greatly improving transmission.

In the same year, copper replaced iron wire on the Toronto line and the introduction of special long distance transmitters extended the range of telephone calling to points in the United States within a radius of 1,000 miles. Subscribers having these long distance transmitters had an asterisk opposite their names in the directory.

At the turn of the century, there were 43 telephones in service here. Then demand increased rapidly. Newmarket's 100th telephone was installed in 1906. On March 8, 1908, 24-hour service became available.

W. H. Goodwin had succeeded J. M. McHardy as telephone manager in April, 1909, and C. H. Mortimore in turn succeeded Mr. Goodwin in November of the following year.

The 200th telephone was installed in 1910 and in May, 1911, the Newmarket office was moved into larger and better quarters in the Star building and new equipment was provided. In the following year the 300th telephone was installed.

In 1915, Mr. Mortimore was succeeded by A. A. Smith as telephone manager. Mr. Smith remained until 1918 when A. C. (Continued on Page 5)

Pay Tribute To Bell
On Centennial March 3

On March 3, 1947, scientists and educationists all over the world will observe the 100th anniversary of the birth of Alexander Graham Bell. At Edinburgh, his native city; at Brantford where he invented the telephone and at many other points in Canada and the United States, ceremonies will mark the centennial of the birth of a great teacher, inventor, humanitarian, scientist and world citizen.

The invention of the telephone and its tremendous impact on civilization has tended to overshadow the rest of Bell's life and work; yet Bell, had he never invented the telephone, would still be remembered for many of the achievements of his almost unparalleled career.

Alexander Graham Bell was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, on March 3, 1847. His grandfather was a well-known actor, Alexander Bell, who was interested in voice production and became a teacher of elocution. He was the editor of Elegant Extracts, a widely used reader and elocution book. Alexander Melville Bell, father of the inventor, was a speech therapist and originator of the system known as visible speech, a set of phonetic symbols representing the position of lips and tongue while making sounds. This system was used for teaching deaf-mutes to speak.

Bell was educated at McLaren's Academy and the Royal high school, Edinburgh. When he was 13, he spent a year with his grandfather, Alexander Bell, in London, where he first studied the treatment of defects in speech.

Inventor At 15

Before he reached the age of 15, Bell had made his first practical invention. A miller called Herdman asked young Bell if he could suggest a method of removing the hulls from wheat before grinding. By experiment Alex discovered that the hulls could be removed by brushing with a stiff brush, so he suggested that a disused vat should be equipped with a rotary brushing wheel. Herdman adopted the boy's suggestion and used it for some years.

It is interesting to note that the name Graham was one adopted by Bell himself when he was 11 years old, because he wanted to be distinguished from the two older Alexanders, his father and his grandfather. He took the name from Alexander Graham, a friend of his father's who owned plantations in Cuba.

In 1862 Bell became a student teacher at Weston House in Elgin, Scotland, where he later, after a year at the University of Edinburgh, became a regular member of the staff. He taught elocution and music.

Bell's Talking Dog
This work with elocution and speech training was of the greatest importance in Bell's future career. He experimented with a Skye terrier, training him to growl continuously so that he could shape the dog's mouth and vocal cords manually to produce syllables. The dog's masterpiece was the sentence, "Ow ah oo ga ma ma" representing "How are you grandmama".

After seeing a talking dummy at a show, Bell and his brother constructed a talking dummy with a model skull and an imitation larynx. The experiments caused a certain amount of alarm and despondency among the neighbors and were therefore discontinued.

While at Weston House, Bell learned of Helmholtz's experiments in Germany with electrically actuated tuning forks with which vowel sounds were produced artificially. Through a misunderstanding of the German text, Bell thought that the sounds were actually transmitted through a wire. But before he had corrected this false notion, the seed of the idea of the telephone had been planted in his brain.

His interest thus aroused, Bell began experiments with electricity and when he became an instructor at Somersetshire College, Bath, England, he installed an electric telegraph between his room and that of a friend.

In 1867 Bell's younger brother died of tuberculosis and Bell's life was threatened. His father went on a lecture tour in North America, during which he searched for a locality that would be salutary to his son's health. During his father's tour, Bell directed the practice in London which Melville Bell had inherited from old Alexander Bell when the latter died in 1865. Alex also taught a special class of deaf pupils and studied the anatomy of the vocal apparatus at the University of London.

Bell In Canada

In 1870, Bell's older brother died. Melville Bell, worried about the health of his surviving son, determined to move at once to Canada.

On August 1, the Bell family landed at the City of Quebec, from where they travelled to Paris, Ont. At Paris they stayed at the home of Rev. Thomas P. Henderson, a Baptist minister and a school inspector who had known the Bells in the old country. Henderson was largely responsible for persuading the Bells to come to Canada.

After a short stay with the Hendersons, Melville Bell found a house that suited him at Tutela Heights, Brantford, where he moved his family on August 10, 1870.

Eight months of life at Brantford set Bell on the road to recovery, so that on April 1, 1871, he could set out for Boston to a teaching job. During those eight months Bell transcribed the language of the Mohawk tribe in visible speech at the nearby Six Nations Reservation at Onondaga.

At Boston, Bell specialized once more in the treatment of speech defects and in the teaching of the deaf. He opened a school for teachers who wanted to teach the deaf and he met, in his first year, two men who were to become his most valuable allies.

One of them, Gardiner Greene Hubbard, also became his father-in-law. Hubbard was leader of the movement to teach the deaf to speak, not merely to use a sign language. Many people thought at the time (in an age when treatment of the mentally ill was extremely crude), that deaf-mutes were akin to lunatics. Hubbard was pleased to have the support of the brilliant young Scottish teacher. The other man was Thomas Sanders, a leather merchant, whose little deaf son, George, was one of Bell's first pupils.

Harmonic Telegraph

In 1873 Bell became a professor of vocal physiology at Boston University. He also began experiments on a harmonic telegraph which was to lead him directly to the invention of the telephone.

The purpose of the harmonic telegraph was to permit more than one message to be sent over the same wire and thereby speed up telegraph service. He planned to send out messages pitched in different keys of the musical scale, each of which would be picked up by a receiver tuned to the same note. At first he tried tuning forks, later steel reeds attached to electro-magnets. Hubbard and Sanders agreed to finance him in his experiments.

In 1874, Bell met Thomas A. Watson, an electrician who was to be his collaborator in his greatest invention. During the year he experimented with devices for making picture patterns of sound. One of these was a mounted human ear-drum. It was this device that gave him the idea for the telephone, which occurred to him while he was on holiday during the summer at Brantford. During this vacation he discussed the possibility of a speaking telephone with his father.

First Patient

In April, 1875, Bell received the patent for his Harmonic telegraph. In June, while experimenting with it, the reed froze to the electro-magnet, and when Watson plucked the reed to try to free it, Bell heard the sound of the plucked reed distinctly over the receiver in another room. Thus, for the first time, was a sound (other than the jumping spark of a telegraph instrument) transmitted over a wire. In September, Bell wrote out the patent specifications for his telephone while on holiday at Brantford, Ont. at his father's home.

The patent for Bell's telephone was issued on March 7, 1876, and on March 10 the first recognizable sentence was heard over the telephone. Bell spelt some word on his coat, and shouted, "Mr. Watson, come here, I want you." Watson rushed into the room in great excitement and announced that he had heard every word distinctly—over the telephone.

The New Yorker

From its early days the telephone has inspired humorous artists and it would be possible to follow the history of the telephone by the cartoons which have appeared. Here we see (above) Alexander Graham Bell officially opening the New York-Chicago long distance line in 1892. Below, the New Yorker cartoonist, Carl Rose, envisages the scene as it would appear in the event that, on that momentous occasion, the inventor of the telephone had been connected with a wrong number. It can be stated, with relief, that no such accident marked the ceremony. A similar ceremony, on January 25, 1932, marked the opening of the Trans-Canada Telephone System.

Can I get started in A BUSINESS OF MY OWN?

YOU CAN FIND THE ANSWER to that one in this very booklet. We have published it for veterans who have the urge to start up for themselves. A copy is yours for the asking at any branch of the Bank of Montreal.

When you call for your copy of "What's the Score on these Veterans' Loans?", have a word with our manager. He knows the details of the new Veterans' Business and Professional Loans Act, recently passed by Parliament for your benefit, and he is anxious to help go-ahead veterans who want to start in business for themselves, to improve their present set-up, or to go into partnership with a friend.

WEDDING CLIMAX OF WAR ROMANCE

In Forward Baptist church, Gerrard St., Toronto, on February 18, Maria Hes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hes, Wateringen, Holland, became the bride of George Judd, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Judd, Brown Hill, Rev. D. Dennick officiated and Mr. Paul Hukish gave the bride in marriage.

The bride wore a gown of white jersey with a long veil and carried a bouquet of white freesia and white roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Audrey Judd and Miss Loraine Hukish, were dressed in champagne yellow and turquoise blue.

Constable Norman Hukish was best man. A reception followed at Ulster Hall, Main St., Toronto.

The wedding was the culmination of a war romance. Serving in the R.C.A.M.C. in Africa, Sicily, France and Germany, Mr. Judd landed in the town of Wateringen, Holland, where he met his bride. Following his discharge he kept the postal authorities busy with air mail letters to Holland and the shipping offices busy answering his inquiries as to the possibility of booking passage from Holland.

Miss Hes was also active. Prospects for her getting over quickly looked rather grim when George received a telegram from New York. She had flown over from Holland and was awaiting him at La Guardia air field. Trust the woman. The newlyweds intend farming and we wish them the best of luck.

Price took over for a short time. In the following year, G. E. Bruce became manager with Miss E. McCaffrey as local representative.

Service Improves

In 1920, Newmarket's 500th telephone was installed. In that year, for the first time, regular commercial service became available to almost any point in Canada and the United States.

In 1925, F. J. Franklin became local representative, only to be superseded by E. A. Schnurr in the following year. It was in 1927 that transatlantic radiotelephony was inaugurated and now, in normal times, you can be connected with any one of about 50,000,000 telephones throughout the world.

Growth continued steadily in Newmarket until 1931, when a pre-depression peak of 868 telephones was in service. During the depression, this figure declined to 764 telephones in 1933. Since that year, however, expansion has been almost continuous.

Mr. Schnurr was succeeded by C. W. Holmes as local representative and wire chief in 1931. On March 23, 1938, a new telephone system was placed in service here. Instead of turning a ringing generator to signal the operator, callers merely lifted the receiver and listened for the operator's "Number, please?" Newmarket was among the first small towns in Canada to get such a system. S. H. Stevens was then telephone manager here and C. W. Holmes was wire chief.

In October, Mr. Stevens was succeeded by H. McClelland. With the exception of a period on leave of absence for duty with the Royal Canadian Air Force, Mr. McClelland remained in charge of local telephone matters until February, 1943, when C. E. Blodale, the present manager, took over.

At the end of 1939, there were 866 telephones in service here. Newmarket passed the 1,000 mark in 1944 and now has over 1,400 telephones in service, 1070 in residences and 335 in places of business.

Moment Musical
By H. G. Fowler, Mus. Bae.
Organist, choirmaster, Trinity United Church supervisor of public school music.

MASCULINE MUSIC

"Music is for girls." Many a boy has seized upon this statement as a first line of defense against the attempts of a fond and hopeful parent to start him in music lessons or to persuade him to continue music study already begun. The writer himself passed through the latter experience in his early years and temporarily accomplished his desire "to quit music". However, a wise and patient mother allowed time to take its course in physical and social development and the art of music eventually won out—with what fearsome consequences for future choirs and pupils!

As an artistic pursuit or as a business profession, music is by no means restricted to the female of the species. Music has to be composed, studied, taught and performed. Can you find the name of one woman among the great composers? How many women are publicly known as professional performers, except, of course, as singers? In our large symphony orchestras, 95 percent of the players are men who earn their living in that way. The same can be said of organists and choirmasters.

In the teaching of music the proportions are just about reversed and naturally so. As a general rule, women are more blessed with the attributes so desirable in the care and instruction of children. And yet this condition obtains only in piano teaching. In the teaching of singing, of band and orchestral instruments, of organ and of theory, the women are again outnumbered.

And so, stick to it boys. Music is a man's job, too!

JOINS FAMOUS FORCE

Ronald Webster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Webster of Goffdown Dr., Thistlethorn, left on February 5 for Ottawa where he has entered training with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The Websters lived for a number of years in Newmarket, and Ronald received his public school education at Stuart Scott and King George schools.

phia Centennial Exhibition, Bell's telephone caused a sensation. Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil was the first of the judges to test it. Sir William Thompson, later Lord Kelvin, was another of the judges.

The four years that followed were very active ones. Bell married Mabel Hubbard, daughter of Gardiner Greene Hubbard, in 1877. She had been deaf since early childhood, and Bell had given her some of the benefit of his teaching. Together the couple visited England and made many demonstrations of the telephone, including one at Osborne to Queen Victoria. During the next years Bell added refinements to the telephone, and helped with the organization of the first telephone company. Much time was spent in lawsuits against persons infringing on the patents.

Bell invented a device called the photophone, in which speech was transmitted by means of light acting on selenium. This was an early piece of work along the same sort of lines that were to lead to talking films.

When the telephone lawsuit had been straightened out, Bell ceased to be actively connected with the company. He devoted his time to the study of deafness and to many other researches. In 1886, he bought a property near Baddeck, Nova Scotia, which he gradually expanded until he owned a whole head-land. Here, in 1892, he built his summer home, in which he occasionally spent a winter.

To his home, Beinn Bhreagh, came visitors from all over the world interested in every aspect of science and education. Helen Keller, the famous little girl who had learned to speak, read and write although she was stricken with blindness and deafness in early childhood, came to Beinn Bhreagh and experienced her first sea bathing. Samuel Langley, an early experimenter with aircraft, came and helped Bell to discover why a cat always lands on its feet. For years local inhabitants remembered the shocking sight of dignified gentlemen spending the whole afternoon dropping pussy from the verandah railing onto a cushion below.

At Beinn Bhreagh Bell developed his great interest in sheep breeding and genetics and worked on many of his experiments with aviation and with hydroplanes.

In 1917 a striking memorial to Bell was unveiled at Brantford, Ont., by the Duke of Devonshire. Bell attended the ceremony, and made a speech in which he said that the idea of the telephone had been conceived, and the patent specifications had been drafted in Canada's Telephone City, Brantford, Ont.

In 1918, Bell received the degree Doctor of Laws from Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., where his father, Melville Bell, had been a faculty member.

Alexander Graham Bell died on August 2, 1922, at his home, Beinn Bhreagh, near Baddeck, Nova Scotia, and was buried on the hillside nearby, with only a huge, rough boulder to mark the site of his grave. His wife, Mabel Hubbard Bell, who had encouraged and helped him throughout his long career since the invention of the telephone, and who had financed many of his later experiments, died in the following year. Her ashes were taken to the same hillside grave where her husband lay buried.

Tuesday, March 18—

By AR. HULSE

"You pay your money and take your choice" and unfortunately you can't do it twice in one evening. If you could there would be a lot of sports fans crowding between Aurora and Newmarket. In the intermediate sector, Newmarket Vets meet Markham Millionaires in the first game of the group finals at Newmarket, while at Aurora, Victoria Square will joust with the Aurora Juniors to decide the opening game of the junior group finals. Both these epic encounters are carded for tonight.

In case you want to follow either team, the Vets go right back at Markham on Friday night in Markham and Aurora make it "hockey night in North York" by visiting Stouffville on Saturday night. In case third games are necessary, here are the arrangements. In the intermediate section, the teams will meet on neutral ice, preferably Aurora. In the junior section the teams toss for the ice. There's a gate split 50-50 in either case. Both Markham and Aurora had the choice of ice for the first game by virtue of finishing first.

What does the crystal ball say? As we see it, Markham and Aurora must get the call to take the rounds in two straight games, barring unforeseen injuries. By that we mean the loss of key players like Smith, Atkinson or Simmons to Aurora or Bangay or Milroy to Markham which would alter the picture considerably.

We look for both series to be close. On the record, Markham should win in a cakewalk but the law of averages says the Vets are due to pull a super effort before the hometown fans. At one time this year, we fancied the Square over Aurora but the Aurora kids have developed a camaraderie and will-to-win that should carry them over the hurdle. Their display in the second game against Newmarket when they were short three regulars was a notable example. Add to this the fact they are riding on a winning streak.

The Square, according to reports, is suffering from illness, injuries and player-shortage, though this may be well intentioned publicity. By picking Markham, Jack McDonald hopes we have put the hex on the Millionaires, whereas Del Babcock hopes we have put it on the Square. It would make it pretty grim for the sports fans of the immediate vicinity if both the Vets and Aurora hit the deck for the count of ten.

Bob Bangay was voted the most popular play by the fans at Markham and thus "Sir Robert" takes away the 'big cup' donated by the Markham village council. Every player on the team was included in the balloting, but Bangay had a good-size margin over the rest. Not much wrong with the choice either for Bob is a pretty nice fellow on and off the ice, and smart too. For years he carried the main chore for Markham juniors. Then it was Newmarket camp and No. 2 C.A.C.T.R., before proceeding overseas as an officer and in peacetime he hasn't forgotten his old tricks. He is the leading scorer on the Markham team, having bagged 67 scoring points to date, made up of 28 goals and 37 assists. Chuck Nesbitt, the Bradford boy who failed to shine as a junior but gets better seemingly each year, led the goal scorers with a 38 count and was second in the team point standing with 59 points. Jackie Watson was in third place with 32 goals and 21 assists for 53 points and Nick Bangay was fourth with 24 goals and 25 assists. Harry Milroy was the other regular to get above 40 points, shipping home 25 goals and corraling 17 assists. Notice that scoring total for the "big line" of Nesbitt and the Bangays, a mere 173 points with 90 goals included. There's no more potent combine line in intermediate hockey today. You can see what the Newmarket Vets and others have to face. You tie up one line with your best and the other one breaks loose.

Minor hockey finds quite a bit of activity still going and shenanigans too. Richmond Hill ousted Keswick in the midget C semi-final and then on Saturday night defeated Bradford 7-3 in Bradford in a sudden-death game for the group honors and the right to meet Charlie Rowntree's midget entry. Bradford didn't take that defeat lying down. They had read the Hill roster and found that only about half of the team resided right in Richmond Hill. A protest was filed with group convenor Leonard Simmons of Aurora without delay, especially over the status of "Stu" Passmore and Ross Woods, who reside in or about Toronto. Checking the players, Simmons found not only did these two players come from outside the Hill but also several others. The O.M.H.A. ruling for C hockey is that no players can be used by any centre when the players come from a bigger centre. The ruling was put in to clearly encourage C competition which had been demanded by the small centres. Simmons accordingly ruled out Richmond Hill after telephone talks with coach Bowen and manager Chester

Unger of the Hill. The team was sponsored by the Richmond Hill Community Youth Council. The Hill can appeal the verdict to the O.M.H.A. sub-committee which meets in Toronto on Tuesday but Simmons opines that it will be to no avail. In view of the fact Keswick was ousted under similar circumstances, they are being given a chance to play Bradford a sudden-death game for group honors prior to tonight when the Woodbridge series is due to start.

Sutton bantams will carry the standard of North York in the fight for the O.M.H.A. bantam C crown and the northern pee wees are a high class team who will give all and sundry a battle. A low scoring record for a four-game series was set for North York as Sutton clashed with Richmond Hill. In four games both teams only scored a total of nine goals and Sutton had the odd one in their favor. It is unusual, especially in kid hockey, to see such low scores. The last game in Sutton was 1-1, with ten minutes overtime, the second game in the Hill was 2-2 with 30 minutes overtime. The teams played a 0-0 draw in Aurora with overtime of ten minutes and finally Sutton clinched the series 2-1 in the Hill on Thursday night. Oreholds to both teams for their fine display and many of the older teams can't show as much combination or team spirit. Here are two line-ups and every youngster deserves a big round of applause as do those associated with the team: Sutton, Bill Henry, Dan McGenerly, Bernard Kay, David Huntley, Bill McLaughlin, Bill Carpentier, Bill Ege, David Weldon, Pete Buckler and Pete White; Richmond Hill, G. Paxton, G. Patton, Dave Bachlie, H. VanDyke, Don Booth, R. Unger, B. Moore, J. Stapley, V. Bennett, J. Hogan, A. Rice. There are no imports there, although some of the Sutton boys come from their suburb of Keswick (apologies to Percy Mahoney and the lads). Harry Bachlie, father of Jack Bachlie who played baseball for Aurora the past summer, is manager of the Hill team. Ron Simmons, the smart young centre of the Aurora junior club, made a brief appearance as a coach with the Hill, on the request of Bachlie, and Ron is taking quite a bit of kidding from his dad, brother and teammates.

Newmarket Legionnaires are still carrying the torch against all comers in midget B, we hope, we hope. These kids were due to play in Collingwood on Saturday afternoon but the party only got as far as Stroud before they ran into a blizzard and were forced back. The opposition gets tougher from here in but Fred Hall's laddies should duplicate Aurora's 1946 effort in our books. A special bit of mention is due Carl Andrews from Sharon who is playing in the nets. The youngster, with no previous experience, has come along nicely and filled what was the No. 1 problem spot on the team.

Sunderland put out Poffelaw in the juvenile group honors in the north and are headed for O.R.H.A. competition as well as O.M.H.A. competition with a smart little club of homebrews. It was fearful Thursday last week for Newmarket. First of all the Vets bowed before Toddmore 7-6 in a game in which the Molyneux sextet took things easy and didn't give goalie Billy Yake, making his first start, much support. Secondly, at Richmond Hill, North York Vets defeated Hoffman Machinery a 7-6 defeat in the second mercantile play-off game. It didn't mean too much for the machinery crew for they took the round 11-9 by virtue of a three-goal lead established at home, but it came as a bit of a shock to their supporters. Klink of the Hill went for three goals in a super-duper effort. To complete the picture, the juniors of course went down to the Aurora junior avalanche 5-0. Good job the midgets weren't playing that day. Aside from hockey, the girls' basketball teams from Newmarket, led high dropped a couple, too.

Hoffman Machinery journeyed to Gravenhurst on Friday accompanied by 60 supporters but they failed to show anything like their usual form and the Indians took a 9-2 win. Bob Peters (yes, that's "Silent Robert" who swore eternally he had retired) was in the nets replacing the injured Mickey Smith and Peters kept the score down and couldn't be charged with the loss. Bob will be "insurance" for the team in the O.H.A. playdowns.

Don McDonald, former Sutton boy, really turned on the heat against Father McCabe's charges and never looked better. The win "is hoped, will have a salutary effect on the team. One or two of the boys had the idea they just couldn't be beaten. Three games in a week and a long trip is not the best way to play hockey, either. Just what the team the Machinery boys will face next in the O.H.A. remains to be seen. Grimsby is picked as likely first-round opposition by those in the know. In the mercantile final, it will likely be Oak Ridges.

Legion Seeks Declaration Of Nov. 11 As Holiday

Canadian Legion branches in Zone E-2 will approach municipal councils throughout North York, requesting them to declare Remembrance Day, Nov. 11, an official holiday this year, it was decided at a meeting of Zone E-2, Canadian Legion council, at King last week. Previously the zone had passed a resolution to this effect which has received wide approval among Legion branches. It was pointed out that although the federal government has provided November 11 as a holiday, each municipality was left on its own with the result many veterans and other groups who wished to honor the memory of the fallen were unable to do so.

A zone rally will be held in Aurora armory on April 28 with prominent speakers and entertainment provided. In order not to conflict with each other in the staging of money-raising functions, each branch will table their proposed dates at the next zone meeting. Newmarket has already been awarded July 1 and Mount Albert the Civic holiday.

FRENCH CANADA NIGHT

It was "French Canada" Night at the Chi Rho club meeting at Trinity parish hall last night. Mrs. G. W. Williams was the speaker of the evening and along with Mrs. J. D. Wilcox, she had on display some excellent specimens of French Canadian handicraft. Mrs. Wilcox delighted with several French Canadian songs. Roland Mould completed the evening with several of Dr. Henry Drummond's poems in patois.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Gray, Yonge St., celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a family party in Toronto on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Gray, both natives of Quebec province, came to Aurora in 1941 from Toronto where they had resided 40 years. Both are in excellent health and Mr. Gray is actively engaged in the grocery business. Mrs. E. C. Fielding, Aurora, and Mrs. L. M. Cook, Richmond Hill, are daughters.

ONCE TWP. CONSTABLE, THOS. ROWNTREE DIES

The death occurred at his residence near Woodbridge on Sunday of Thomas Rowntree. A member of a pioneer Vaughan township family and in his 67th year, he had attended a lodge meeting on Saturday. He had not been in robust health the past few years.

Mr. Rowntree farmed for many years and was in addition formerly township constable. He was past master of Woodbridge L.O.L. and past county master of West York. A strong Conservative, he took an active part in election campaigns. He was interested in sports and especially followed hockey and lacrosse where his sons Charles and Russell were prominent as players and coaches.

He is survived by his widow, the former Mary Hopperoff, one daughter, Mrs. Gordon Shannon, and two sons, Charles and Russell. Funeral service was on Wednesday with interment in Pine Grove cemetery.

The senior girls defeated the purple and gold 18-14 in a thrilling game which marked the first defeat of the year for Newmarket. Aurora by defeating Richmond Hill can create a first place tie in the senior series.

In the junior game, Aurora coasted to a 18-9 win. It was the third straight win for Aurora, and one more win over Richmond Hill gives the local juniors the group championship.

Mrs. Howard Longfield Dies Suddenly Feb. 21

Funeral services were held on Friday for Mrs. Howard Longfield, Connaught Ave., who died suddenly on February 18 at York County hospital. Born Nellie Viola Cook, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Cook and was born near Newmarket. She was in her 46th year and was married 23 years ago. She and her husband had resided at Newmarket and Sharon prior to moving to Aurora six years ago.

The service was conducted by Rev. A. R. Park of Aurora Baptist church and the pallbearers were William Davidson, William Seaton, Albert Patrick, William Boaks, John Bodfish and Gordon Burnstead. Interment was at Aurora cemetery. Surviving besides her husband are six children, Milton, Marjorie, Bruce, Barbara, Carl, Grace and baby Linda.

Mrs. Longfield's mother, Mrs. Lydia Cook, Brooklin, who had attended the service and was visiting with her grandchildren and son-in-law, died suddenly following a heart attack. Mrs. Cook was in her 74th year and had been regarded as in fair health. The funeral service was held on Tuesday from her late residence at Brooklin with interment at Hartman's cemetery, Mount Albert.

Beavers' 'Benzidrene' Hop Too Much For Weasels

Rudyard Kipling wrote that "never the twain shall meet" but on Tuesday night, pepped up by vitamin pills and atomic energy, the Eastside met the Westside in a battle royal for the unofficial championship of Aurora, and the slightly used ash-can trophy now rests with Chet Osborne and his Eastside Eager-Beavers who scored a 3-0 win over Keith Nisbet's Westside Weasels.

Players and spectators enjoyed the contest to the full, and it was a good job Wednesday was a half-holiday as ambitious athletes licked their wounds and unbound creaking joints. The Humane Society and the Board of Health will be called into consultation before another contest is arranged.

No need to mention stars, although Normie Egan with two goals, Ray Rogers with one, James "Shutout" Murray, Aub. Fleury and Alf. Cotey caught the eye for the winners. George Moody, Don Holman, Bill Fry and Stew. Patrick excelled for the Weasels.

Bud "Flash" Barrager handled the whistle in big-league style. Eastside: Jim Murray, Alf. Cotey, Chet Osborne, Charlie Southwood, Ray Rogers, Earl Seartell, Ab Collins, Cliff Chapman, Aub Fleury, Gord Stephenson, Bob Rankin, Pete King, Ans Gilbert, George Morris, Bill Summers, Don Glass.

Westside: Don Holman, Doug Nisbet, Jack Bowser, Jr., Stewart and Al Patrick, "Wim" Ash, Harold Rogers, Pete Walker, Ken Rose, George Moody, Bill Fry, Johnny Mathewson, Frank Caruso, Ross Avis, Tommy Spence, Harold Graham.

Battle To 6-6 Tie In Merk Semi-Finals

Oak Ridges and Combines battled to a 6-6 overtime tie in the first game of their mercantile series on Monday night at Aurora arena. The game was a thriller, and the boys provided a speedy bruising game that had the handful of fans on edge. Referee Bob Peters threatened to quit the game after both teams had offended about every rule in the book in the first period which ended 1-1. From there to the end the boys settled down to serious business, and it was too bad the junior play-off kept the fans at home. Watch for the next mercantile feature, which will either be the continuance of the series or the first of the finals.

HOOPLA SQUADS BREAK EVEN ON HILL TEST

Aurora high school basketball squads broke even as they invaded Richmond Hill on Monday. The unbeaten junior squad maintained its unblemished record, 17-12, while the seniors went down to defeat 26-12. Playing with only six players, and minus one of their better performers, the Hill minors gave Aurora a great battle, the Aurora boys only winning out in the latter stages. Jim McDonald and Jack Andrews played standout basketball for Aurora, with Neal and Rycraft going good for the losers. A.H.S. (17), Andrews, Barker (2), Kyle (4), McDonald (6), Scott (1), Doherty, Barrager, Linton (2), King (2).

R.H.S. (12), Neal (5), Tobias (4), Rycraft (3), Steffen, Woods, Mansbridge.

For three quarters of the senior game, it looked as if Aurora seniors were about to cause a major upset as they gamely battled with the powerful Hill team. Aurora led 8-7 at the half, and entering the fourth quarter the Hill had a narrow 14-12 margin before finally hitting the high spots. Clement and Clarke paced the Hill, with McNaught, Lee and Urquhart turning in good efforts for Aurora.

A.H.S. (12), Lee, Urquhart (2), McNaught (6), Monkman (4), Hollingsworth, Murray.

Aurora Jrs. Down Redmen In Two Quick Victories

Victoria Square juniors will meet Aurora in the first game of the group finals tonight at Aurora arena with the return game listed for Stouffville on Saturday night. The series is on a best-of-three basis and each team defeated the other in the regular schedule.

By virtue of two decisive wins over Newmarket, the speedy Aurora youngsters won their way to the finals. They took Newmarket 5-0 in Aurora last Thursday and on Monday night before feated, the Redmen never gave up trying and the series was a beacon light in the two games was the work of goalie Eric Smith of Aurora. In the second game when Aurora was weakened by the loss through illness and injuries of Bill Mundell, Norm Nigh and Billy Attridge, Smith rose to the heights. One goal in two games is mighty sweet net-minding in any league. Special mention must go to Ron Simmons, Tommy Brodie and Jack Atkinson for their work in the series but there wasn't a weak link in the Aurora chain.

AURORA, 5; NEWMARKET, 0

In the opening game of the series, Aurora tastefully calms the Redmen although the five-goal margin fails to represent the actual play. The understaffed Newmarket team gave the Aurora kids a great battle for two periods, and in the first period outplayed and outshot Aurora. In the third stanza, the roof caved in and that young op- portunist, Ronnie Simmons, went for the hat trick on some clever thrusts. Eric Smith scored a well earned shutout, handling 33 shots without a miscue. Except for the first two goals, Tupling played a sound game for Harry Thoms' team, the bespectacled youngster making 31 saves. Aurora had too much finesse and gallop for the Newmarket team inside the opposing blue-line, and the Redmen appeared fagged out at the end while the Aurora youngsters were ready for more.

Held Scoreless in First
Failing to take advantage of countless rebounds the Newmarket team were held scoreless by Aurora in the first period although they had an edge on the play. The Aurora attack seemed to have trouble getting started and Kemp, Thoms and Broughton had several chances that just failed to click. Walt Davies drew the only penalty of the period, but with the odd man advantage, the Redmen didn't appear as potent as at even strength. The first period was Newmarket's best effort.

Tommy Brodie opened the scoring at 2:15 of the second. He speared the puck in the corner and fired on the cage, Tupling making the stop but pulling the rubber into the net as he went to clear. Clever defensive play plus over-anxiousness by Aurora enabled the Redmen to hold off the Aurora attack as Thoms drew a penalty for boarding, followed within a few seconds by Bob Walker, to give the homesters a two-man advantage. That defensive effort told heavily on the Redmen.

Ron Simmons took the steam out of Newmarket as he took the puck from a Redmen defenceman just outside the blue-line and fired home a waist-high shot which Tupling failed to see, as the third period opened. Bill Mundell, six minutes later, got credit along with Brodie for a goal from a scramble in front of the Newmarket net. Actually the puck caromed off Broughton past Tupling. Simmons and Brodie combined for a pretty effort at 52:08 and Simmons picked up a loose puck a minute later to end the scoring. Play was rough in the last period as the boys exchanged receipts. Eyes and McGhee drew roughing penalties, Thoms drew a tripping penalty, Broughton and Mundell tangled briefly for a two-minute rest and Attridge was awarded a minor for boarding Thoms. Tupling provided one of the highlights of the period as he lost his stick and played over a minute without it.

Ewart Pinder awarded the three stars to Eric Smith, Ron Simmons and Harry Caradonna. No one could find fault with his awards. Smith scored his second and shutout of the year. Simmons went for three and was strong defensively, while Caradonna carried not only the defensive chore but a lot of the offensive as well for Newmarket. It was hard to pass up Tommy Brodie and Jack Atkinson of Aurora who were standouts of the night. Bill McGhee turned in his best game of the year for Aurora. Bob Walker, Kemp, Broughton and Davis played strong hockey for Newmarket. Motts Thoms was strong in the first period but faded badly.

Aurora: goal, Smith; def., Andrews and Atkinson; c., Simmons; wings, Brodie and Mundell; subs, Patrick, Davis, Nigh, Wilkinson. Attridge, McGhee, Doolittle.

Newmarket: goal, Tupling; def., Walker and Caradonna; c., Broughton; wings, Thoms and Davis; subs, Eves, Kemp, Gibson, Rank.

NEWMARKET: goal, Tupling; def., Walker and Caradonna; c., Broughton; wings, Thoms and Davis; subs, Eves, Kemp, Gibson, Rank.

NEWMARKET: goal, Tupling; def., Walker and Caradonna; c., Broughton; wings, Thoms and Davis; subs, Eves, Kemp, Gibson, Rank.

NEWMARKET: goal, Tupling; def., Walker and Caradonna; c., Broughton; wings, Thoms and Davis; subs, Eves, Kemp, Gibson, Rank.

AURORA, 7; NEWMARKET, 1

It was a nip-and-tuck struggle for 40 minutes of the second game despite the fact Aurora led 3-1 at the end of the first period, and once again Harry Thoms' boys wilted before a torrid Aurora third period offensive. Substituting for Captain Bill Mundell, Eugene Rose came into his own with a sparkling effort that netted him three goals and this, coupled with Smith's smart performance, turned the tide.

Newmarket opened the scoring at 8:53 as Jim Rutledge beat Smith on a triple threat play with Gibson and Kemp. Rose got that one back at 13:15 as he sifted one past Tupling after Doolittle had sent him in the clear. It looked like a deadlock as the minutes sped by, and then Aurora scored two quickies, both of the soft variety, in the last 35 seconds. Jack Andrews trapped the puck just inside the blue-line and fired one home at 19:25 and Ron Simmons picked up a loose puck at 19:57 to score cleanly. Eves had the only penalty of the period.

The second period was scoreless with both teams turning on the heat, and the crowd roaring approval. Newmarket territorially had the edge although their thrusts were not as well timed as Aurora's. Simmons drew a penalty at 6:58 but the Newmarket boys couldn't take advantage of it.

In the third period, goals and heavy checking came with abandon. Simmons scored unassisted at 2:04. Rose scored a nice one at 3:45 as he took Patrick's pass on the fly and fired an ankle-high shot home. Atkinson drew a penalty at 5:28 and Smith was tested hard. Thoms and Doolittle tangled at 6:12 and both drew minors. Atkinson returned to score one which was disallowed as the whistle had gone. At 8:12 Tunstead was penalized, and shortly after he returned to the ice he drew a match misconduct as he clashed verbally with referee Jack McEachern. Rose got his third goal at 12:10. Broughton and Atkinson drew penalties as the play roughened up. At 17:45 Walt Davis completed the scoring with a fast play.

Aside from Smith's great performance, the three-goal spurge of Rose, and Simmons' two counters, too much credit can't be paid Jack Andrews who was a bulwark of strength on the Aurora defence along with Atkinson and Doolittle.

Fink Tunstead, making his second appearance for the Redmen, played high class hockey, marked only by his vocal efforts. "Lucky" Kemp, the spectacular but ineffective Harry Caradonna, and Whitey Davis were tireless in their efforts to beat Smith. Despite the score, the Redmen went down with flying colors, and given better net-minding, the game would have been very, very close.

CLARK YOUNG features ONTARIO PLOWMEN'S ASSOCIATION

Editor's note: This is one of a series of weekly stories which Clark Young, treasurer of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, will write about the visit of Canada's champion plowmen to Britain.

Canada's four champion plowmen, their team manager and I are now in Britain. It is the first time any of us have seen the Old Land and we hope to bring back a lot of valuable agricultural information.

Our trip will take us into England, Scotland and Ireland, giving us a chance to see farms that have been under cultivation for hundreds of years. We want to know how Canadian products are being received over here; how the British farmers managed during the war; and what the farming conditions are like now that peace is back again.

The four champion plowmen are two teams and they will take part in plowing matches in Lancashire, England, and County Down in Northern Ireland. Floyd Steckley and Austin Nairn won the Salada gold and silver medals in the trans-Atlantic class for horse-drawn jointer plowing at the International Plowing Match held in Ontario on the Port Albert airport last October. Fred Timbers and Alex Black were winners in the Esso open tractor class at the match.

As champions they were awarded this trip and all their expenses and those of the manager are being paid jointly by Imperial Oil Limited and the Salada Tea Co. of Canada Ltd., while mine are being paid by the Ontario Plowmen's Association.

Local Winners

When Floyd Steckley won the Salada gold medal at Port Albert it was his fourth international championship in horse-drawn plowing. He was born 44 years ago on a farm in Whitechurch township, York county, and now is manager of the Harvey Schell 210-acre farm near Stouffville. His wife is the former Lila Grove and they have a ten-year-old son.

Fred Timbers, the Esso tractor gold medalist, is another frequent international winner. He was born on his father's farm in Markham township, York county, in 1907 and now owns a 113-acre farm at R. 4 in Whitechurch township. He takes an active part in municipal affairs as a member of Whitechurch township divided into eight small compartments, each seating six. This is just right for our party because you may remember there are six of us.

In London we went to Hays Wharf and Dock Office, Tooley St., where we were guests of Sir Aubrey Smith, chairman of the dock company. First we were served a nice lunch and then we were shown the warehouses and storage sections.

We were able to compare Canadian and Danish bacon and, according to our guide, our best Canadian bacon is as good as any they receive, but it may not be as uniform as the Danish. There was butter at the docks from Australia, New Zealand and Denmark, all of first class quality. Canadian cheese and eggs are much in demand and the box pack of our Canadian apples is much preferred to barrel pack because of too much bruising and waste.

We are to spend the weekend looking at the sights of London and then on Monday we are to have our first visit to a British farm—the King's farm at Windsor Castle. After that we are to have a busy schedule of trips to other agricultural areas and we hope to learn a lot from British farming methods.

March Lion Or Lamb?
Golden Glow Wonders

By GOLDEN GLOW

The day after tomorrow we will all be looking to see whether March comes in like a lamb or a lion. If it comes in like a lamb then hurrah for spring, only 20 days away according to the calendar—but, of course, March can be pretty rough. I once froze my ears going up to high school on March 4 so you see I have good reason to remember it can still be pretty cold next month.

We always look for March winds, "nature's broom" somebody has called it—when nature does her spring house cleaning. Housewives like to hang their heavy winter drapes and bed clothing out in the wind. But nowadays we don't have such heavy bed clothing as formerly, for houses are warmer. Some of these old time woollen quilts were so heavy folks used to get up more tired than when they went to bed.

We will all be looking in our flower borders presently for the first snowdrop and crocus and the small boys will be hunting for pussywillows. The swallows will come back to Capistrano, Cal., again on March 19, St. Joseph's Day. Those mystery birds leave exactly on the same day in the fall every year, St. John's Day, Oct. 23, and return on the same day in the spring, March 19. When we hear from friends in California that the swallows are back then we will know for sure that spring is here.

But just think what faces us the next few weeks! I think when the moon changes to first quarter tomorrow we'll get a decided change in the weather. I am old fashioned enough to "go by the moon" when predicting weather. When all these snow drifts start to soften up and really melt, won't we have a few days of sloppy walking? Sink or swim, as we used to say.

The high school children won't be taking a short cut across the pond much longer or if they do, they may prove the old adage, "the longest way round is the shortest way home", for a ducking in the pond is not so good!

Last Sunday it came over the radio that London, Eng., was having sunshine for the first time in 22 days. We may think we have had an extreme winter but when we think of Britain, we decide to "count our blessings". The storm that was promised us for Thursday evening we mercifully escaped. I write that word mercifully because in big black headlines in Saturday's paper it says that 60 are dead because of that same storm. It swung farther south, just the lower fringe of Ontario being included. Britain had the worst blizzard in 100 years.

You hear our boys and C.W.A.C.'s commenting on the inadequate means of combating the cold over there. The open fireplaces in some homes are practically all the heat available and then "your face burns and your back freezes".

Frozen taps and burst water pipes will soon, I hope, be a thing of the past and I hope we'll soon hear our first robin (capital R because Robin Redbreast does really mean that spring is here), and hear the small boys telling each other that "sap's running". I have already seen the black squirrels in our neighborhood scampering around and one day I thought I heard a crow. Some day soon we will be able to walk along our sidewalks, for in many places we have had to take to the road because the snowplow while clearing the road piled the snow on the sidewalks. It has been next to impossible for baby carriages—but cheerio, spring really is just around the corner for Saturday is March 1.

Young Hopefuls

By DOROTHY MUIR ROWMAN

Little Jean is two and a half years old. Her meal periods are very trying to others because they are of endless duration. Jean stalls so long between bites that it takes her about an hour to eat her average meal. Recently, near the end of one of these extended meal periods little Jean floored her mother with, "Don't rush me, mother".

A clock could be introduced into Jean's life very appropriately at this stage in her development. It should be large enough, if possible, for her to almost see the hands move. The clock says, "It is time to eat when the hands are here"; likewise, "It is time to finish eating when the hands are here".

Children enjoy "the clock says" games; besides, this type of training is impersonal and has value as such. What mother and father think and say about this and that isn't as forceful as "Mr. Clock's" constant reminder of routine.

A series of clock pictures could be made and labelled according to the time and nature of each regular daily function. A system of punching the clock interests school-age children.

Children shouldn't have the feeling they are being rushed from one thing to another. However, they should be trained to do a little rushing of their own accord. They need early guidance to help them become systematic and efficient.

Twenty minutes is quite a sufficient length of time for a child to devote to a meal. That 20-minute time interval doesn't allow for prolonged conversation or dawdling to any extent—but only for business—like consumption of the meal. At the end of 20 minutes—when the clock says the time—the food should be removed without personal comment.

This experiment, given sufficient trial, will prove extremely satisfactory and will cut the meal periods by more than half in most instances.

THE RED CROSS

CARRIES ON

Our men and women back from the world battlefields often tell how the Red Cross was there to aid and comfort them—often times to save their lives. Now the Red Cross asks those who extended such solid support during the war years, to help keep the Red Cross strong in peace.

Today there are thousands of sick and disabled veterans who need the continued help and friendship of the Red Cross. Isolated frontier communities need Outpost Hospitals and nursing service—their only medical aid. Crippled children's hospitals must be maintained and expanded. Men, women and children across Canada need the Blood Transfusion Service the Red Cross has started to supply.

Will you continue to lend your help to sick and suffering humanity? The Red Cross work is your work.

On Tuesday evening of last week, Onward Lodge, I.O.O.F., held an oyster supper in their lodge room when about 60 sat down to enjoy a real meal. Robertson presented 25-year jewels to Mr. Thos. Allison and Mr. Oscar Dike. Two past district deputies were to have received jewels also but they were not sent in time to arrive for the evening. Those who would have received them were Ronald Allison and John Jarvis.

Mr. Angus Harrison was chairman for the evening and Rev. W. H. Burgess, a guest, in a short speech said that while not a member of any society he enjoyed working with it and said he had never known in any place he had ever lived three lodges to get along so well together as they do in Mount Albert. Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Theaker who last Saturday passed their 25th wedding anniversary.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT TWO-MONTH SENTENCE ON LIQUOR CONVICTION

Jack Britton, R. R. 2, Lake Wilcox, was sentenced to two months in jail when he was convicted in magistrate's court on Friday of selling liquor without a license. Magistrate J. E. Pritchard, K.C., presided.

Constable W. J. Myers testified that he had gone to the home of the accused in the company of Constables B. Burbidge and A. Fleury and matron Mae Sanderson and that while the others waited in the car outside he had gone to the door and asked accused if he had any liquor to sell. He said that he was dressed in plain clothes and that he had never seen the accused man before, but that accused gave no indication that he did not know him.

"Britton said that he did not have much liquor but that he could sell me some beer. I went in and he brought out six pints of beer from a cupboard in the living-room and he gave them to me. He asked me if I would like a shot of liquor and when I replied that I would, he produced a bottle of rye from the same cupboard. He poured me a shot and took one himself. I gave him a $10 bill that had been marked in the presence of Burbidge and Fleury and he gave me $6.50 in change.

"Within five minutes, Burbidge, Fleury and Miss Sanderson entered, produced a search warrant and searched the premises, which consisted of a grocery store with living quarters attached. Two full cases of beer were found as well as one port case. The matron searched the accused's wife and found the marked bill."

Cross-examined by Jos. Vale, counsel for the accused, Constable stable Myers said that he had been on 24-hour call that weekend and that it was quite usual in cases of this kind to be out of uniform while on duty. He said that he had not asked the accused to give him a drink but admitted that he had called the accused by his first name and that he had said that he was cold. "I spoke to him as if I knew him and he did not indicate that he did not know me," he said.

"I did not drink all of the glass of liquor that he gave me but poured it back in the bottle when the others arrived. I put the beer on the chesterfield and handed him the marked bill which he gave to his wife. At no time did I receive or ask for two packages of cigars from the accused."

Constable Burbidge testified that he had entered the home of the accused accompanied by Constable Fleury and that he had never seen Britton before. "Fleury was in uniform but I was not," Constable Burbidge said. "I produced the search warrant and we went in. The accused sat down and seemed despondent. He said that he was out of work and had a lot of debts and that he was selling a little liquor to try to get out of debt. There was no questioning and the statements were made entirely of his own free will."

Mr. Vale objected to the admission of the statements as evidence on the grounds that the accused had not been cautioned before making them.

"We told the accused when we entered that we were with the York county police," Constable Burbidge said.

Britton denied that he had ever made the statements. "Since the accused denies having made any statements, the statements that the officers say that he made can be admitted as evidence," Magistrate Pritchard said.

"The matron was summoned to accompany Mrs. Britton into the bedroom to get the marked bill," Constable Burbidge said. "She was only in the room for ten or 15 seconds when the matron returned with the bill."

Constable Burbidge denied having made any changes in the search warrant subsequent to the search but he admitted that someone had changed the name on it from Britton to Britton and the name of the store from Vaneck's to Vaneck's. He said that he did not have the bag which had contained the beer when it was seized.

Constable Fleury corroborated Constable Burbidge's evidence. He said that he had seen Britton before but did not know him personally. He said that he had seen Mrs. Britton go into the section of the premises that was the store but that when he asked her why she had gone in, she had said, "To get a box." He said that there was no Vaneck's store at Wilcox Lake.

Mr. Vale asked that the charge against the accused be dismissed on the grounds that the crown had not established that the alleged offence took place in the County of York and that if it had not, then there was no jurisdiction for the court to act; that there was no evidence except the word of Constable Myers that any sale of liquor had taken place; and that the warrant was completely void and gave no authority to search the premises of the accused Jack Britton, proprietor of Vaneck's store.

"There is no authority under the Liquor Control Act for the officers to search the premises of the accused without a search warrant unless they had written consent of the Commissioner of Police for Ontario which they did not have. The warrant that they did have was worthless," Mr. Vale said.

He said that there was no evidence to prove that the bottles on exhibit contained beer and that "I do not think that it would be right to allow a warrant to be changed after a search."

Magistrate Pritchard said that in his opinion, the warrant sufficiently indicated the correct premises; that he had province-wide jurisdiction and that under the Liquor Control Act he was entitled to draw an inference as to whether the bottles contained beer or not after an examination of them.

"After a careful examination of the bottles, I find as a fact that the bottles do contain ale, which is liquor within the meaning of the act," he said.

Jack Britton said that "Britton" was the only name on the front of his store. "I recognized Myers when he came," Britton said. "He asked me if I would sell him a 'mikey' and I told him I didn't have anything for sale but that I had a little rye for myself. He kept saying that he was cold and I told him that I would give him a shot.

"He came in and sat down and I poured a drink for each of us. I knew that he was a police constable. We just sat and talked. He did not give me any money, although he did try to. Then he ordered two packages of cigars and matches from my wife and she went into the store to get them. She put them on the table beside him and picked up the bill which he had put there. Indians Scalp Hoffman's In Bruising Match 9-2

By GEO. HASKETT, JR.

Hoffman Machines disappointed their many supporters who went along with the team in two busses at Gravenhurst Friday evening. The Gravenhurst "Indians" out-shot and out-played the Hoffman crew to record a 9-2 win.

It was a rugged, bruising game from the opening whistle. There never was a dull moment. Penalties, high sticks and general mayhem was the order of the evening. The game was closer than the score would indicate as Putsura in the Gravenhurst nets threw up an iron curtain around his citadel, stopping the Hoffman snipers time after time. But the Hoffman front strings didn't have their usual spark and their passing plays weren't hitting the on the table with the cigars. I did not offer to sell him any beer and I did not sell any. The beer was on the chesterfield when he came in and was not in a bag. My wife and I had intended to take the beer with us to a party.

"Then Burbidge came in," he continued. "He pushed past me and went over to Myers and said 'Did he take it?' and Myers answered 'Yes'. I do not know how much change my wife gave him nor do I know how much of what she gave him he took with him. He did not take the cigars."

Mrs. Britton corroborated her husband's testimony but had a little difficulty in remembering how much change she had given the officer.

"The whole case boils down to a question of credibility," Magistrate Pritchard said. "To acquit this man I would have to accept his story and to disbelieve the testimony of all three of the police officers. Are they so interested in this case that all three of them would deliberately perjure themselves to get a conviction? Or is it logical to assume that the man himself has a greater interest in the result of the case?"

"There is no evidence that Myers ever had the beer in his possession," Mr. Vale pointed out. "Where is the bag that he said it was in?"

"I have come to the conclusion that I should accept the evidence of the officers," Magistrate Pritchard said. "I find that it is a fact that Myers did give the marked bill to the accused, that he did get $6.50 in change, that the liquid in question is beer and that the money that the accused received was in payment of the beer. I do not believe that any cigars were purchased or that any money retained by the accused was for the purchase of cigars."

The minimum sentence of two months was imposed.

Walter Kay was fined $10 and costs on a charge of shouting and swearing in a Sutton restaurant and being a vagrant. Sam Chong, proprietor of the restaurant, said that accused had come into the restaurant in an intoxicated condition on several occasions and caused disturbances by using vile language. "Every time he gets too much to drink he comes to my place," Chong complained. Chief Constable William Burke said that accused had offered no resistance when taken into custody.

Charges against Oscar M. Brooke, Gormley, R. R. 2, for failure to file income tax returns in the years 1943, 1944 and 1945 were withdrawn when Joseph Vale, acting for the crown, said that he had received notice that accused had died over a year ago.

Oxford McNeil, Forest Hill, and Norman Burns were each fined $5 and costs for parking on the travelled portion of No. 11 highway. Provincial Constable W. A. Melbourne laid the charges.

On the Road

There is a large army of outdoor men who have learned to depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Riding on trains or trucks causes a jarring which is hard on the kidneys as is also the exposure to all kinds of wind and weather.

This medicine goes to stimulate the action of the kidneys and relieve the backaches which so often result.

For over half a century they have been popular with railway men, truckers and farmers.

"NERVES"
She Called It

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired—"Nerves", she thought—but it was her kidneys—the filter of her blood—that needed attention. She used Dodd's Kidney Pills at once. The improved action of her kidneys helped to clear away those impurities and excess acids. Fatigue, backache, headache, lack of energy disappeared. Dodd's Kidney Pills contain essential oils and medicinal ingredients that act directly upon the kidneys—and help restore their normal action. 144

VOWS TAKEN IN CANDLELIGHT

St. Paul's Anglican church, Newmarket, was the scene of a candlelight, double-ring, wedding service performed by Rev. F. V. Abbott, Schoenberg on Saturday, Feb. 22, at 7 p.m. of Agnes Jennie Munshaw, daughter of Mr. Steven Munshaw, Kettleby, and the late Mrs. Munshaw, and William Richard Hutchinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Hutchinson, Newmarket.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a princess-lined white satin gown with long, pointed over-the-hand sleeves and sweetheart neckline. Her only jewelry was her mother's diamond and pearl sunburst. She wore a full-length embroidered silk net veil with matching heart-shaped headdress and carried a shower bouquet of red roses and baby's breath. Her attendant was her sister, Mrs. Bruce Phillips, Newmarket, in a turquoise blue silk jersey gown, matching shoulder veil and a blue and rose headdress. Her only jewelry, a gift from the bride, were jeweled clips worn on the sweetheart neckline of her gown. Her flowers were pink and white roses and maidenhair fern. Six-year-old Carol Lombard, Toronto, a small friend of the bride, was flower girl, dressed in a full-length rose silk jersey gown and carrying an old-fashioned nosegay of sweet peas.

The best man was Lawrence Needler, Newmarket. The ushers were brother of the bride, Bruce, Kettleby, and uncle of the groom, Dean Brandon, Guelph.

The reception was held at Club 14, Millard Ave., Newmarket. Receiving for the bride was her aunt, Mrs. R. M. Archibald who wore brown printed Jersey and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, Mrs. P. A. Hutchinson, received in light blue crepe and a corsage of red roses. For travelling on their wedding trip, the bride wore a two-tone sand and brown wool dress, a brown fur coat and accessories and a corsage of red roses. On their return, the happy couple will make their home in Guelph.

Newmarket Churches Join In World Prayer Service

The first Friday in Lent, February 21, was observed by a service of prayer held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church.

"It may seem like a long journey from the heart of India to earth's remotest bounds, yet you can trace the footprints of the Son of God along every inch of that highway, as pointed out to us in this unusual Prayer Service written by a talented Indian woman, Mrs. Isabel Caley, on the staff of the Evening Christian College, Allahabad," the Service said.

"Burdened with her cargo of concern for all men everywhere, Mrs. Caley shows us how to make level in the desert the highway of our God; it will be stimulating to discover that all through her Oriental symbolism there sparkles the refreshing Water of Life, as basis of blessing, without which none of us could make journey's end without stumbling and falling. No program could prove more convincingly that the whole family of the whole church in the whole world is indeed one in Him for whom our souls all thirst. For in the letter accompanying her manuscript, the authoress wrote: 'I thank you for the confidence you have placed in me by giving me the privilege of writing the service for 1947. I have enjoyed writing it, and to me personally has come a fresh challenge to pray and do my part humbly but with all my heart, strength and mind toward the realization of the Christ-like World Order. May we feel that upon each of us rests a responsibility so big, so sacred and so beautiful that we dare not refuse it.'"

At the beginning of the service two minutes of silence were observed for the late Mrs. L. E. Sparks, who had been the guest speaker at previous services and who at all times had shown a keen interest in this work.

Each church was invited to participate and the following ladies were representatives: United church, Mrs. J. B. Bastedo; Anglican, Mrs. Thomas Watson; Christian, Mrs. W. Winkworth; Church of the Nazarene, Mrs. A. Haines; Friends, Mrs. Carl Winger; Gospel Tabernacle, Mrs. Dave Love; Presbyterian, Mrs. Roy MacDonald; Free Methodist, Mrs. Win. Mino.

Leadership of the service was handled by Mrs. MacDonald, while a duet, Sometime, Somewhere, was sung by Mrs. Wm. Epworth and Mrs. L. H. Bovair. A brief address was given by Mrs. Love.

GUIDANCE AN

"Too many pupils have been allowed to guide themselves toward unachievable goals," he continued. "The choice of an occupation should be based on a scientific analysis of one's own ability, coupled with accurate and up-to-date information on the requirements and opportunities of the various occupations."

Help Students

He said that good teachers have always attempted to understand and help guide their students but that they have neither the time nor the training to do guidance work effectively. "Furthermore, all teachers have not the personal qualifications to do guidance work, even though they may be good subject teachers. The most practical guidance program is one where the informal or incidental guidance is supplemented and made effective by the work of carefully chosen and trained teachers who assume responsibility for the organization of the work and for the specialized phases for which the regular teachers have not the natural abilities or training."

Because of its special and intimate knowledge of the pupil's abilities, because of its long and close contact with the pupil, and also because of its opportunity, the school is in a position to render peculiarly valuable guidance, he said.

He said that it could not be expected that guidance programs would be set up overnight, that it would take time to get adequate cumulative records in operation, to assemble occupational and educational information and to train teachers and teacher-counselors. "However, with the splendid support of principals and inspectors, with the sympathetic understanding of teachers everywhere, with a growing realization of the true nature of guidance by parents and pupils and with a frank eagerness for guidance by the general public, the program will inevitably move forward."

He said that study of the individual, study of the occupational and educational worlds and counselling (interviewing) were three of the most important factors that go to make up a practical guidance program. "Just because a student has high marks at school does not mean that he can make a success of any occupation he might choose; and just because he has low marks at school, that does not mean that he will be a failure in the occupational world," he said.

Study Pupils

He said that a complete study of the pupil, from the time he enters school until the time that he graduates is the only way that the answer can be found. "This study must include his background, hobbies, interests, aptitudes, participation in extra-curricular activities, work experiences and all those factors which make up an individual," he said.

Mr. Beattie said that many schools in Ontario have selected certain teachers to give leadership to the work of guidance and to do those phases of the work for which the regular teachers have neither time nor the training. "These teacher-counselors must have the proper personality and viewpoint or there will be a danger that much advice of an amateur nature will be given. The training for teacher-counselors is being provided by the Ontario Department of Education."

Mr. Beattie said that it is most important that adequate time be provided to do guidance work and that an objective of one teacher's time-table for each 500 students was recommended by the department.

"The question has never been 'Shall we do guidance work in our schools?' The question is 'How shall we do guidance work in our schools?' Guidance is an inescapable responsibility. Not only are we doing much informal and incidental guidance, but we are also strengthening and supporting the whole program of guidance by gradually establishing in our schools that organization which is necessary to do a really effective job," Mr. Beattie concluded.
